“This book shows the fascinating achievement of an innovative inter-disciplinary methodology integrating sociology with historical archival analyses of Salonica in a time of major changes.”
Prof. Gérard Nahon, Directeur d’Études honoraire, École Pratique des Hautes Études, Section des Sciences Religieuses, Sorbonne, Paris

“Meron tracks changes in demography and politics in a major commercial center of the Jewish Diaspora during the tumultuous inter-war period. The result will be of serious interest to students of ethnic economies and ethnic diasporas anywhere in the world.” Ivan Light, Professor of Sociology at the University of California, Los Angeles

“This beautifully written, elegantly theorized and painstakingly researched book tells the story of Jewish economic activities in Salonica. Applying methods and data from several scholarly disciplines, it brings to light an important but understudied chapter in Jewish and European economic history.” Steven Gold, Professor and Graduate Program Director, Department of Sociology, Michigan State University

“National historiographies usually mask the significance of the entrepreneurial activities of ethnic minorities in the economies of host countries. But Meron produces a fascinating book that forms a paradigm of the response and adjustment of an ethnic minority, from an old multicultural eastern empire to a modern peripheral European national state.” Professor Gelina Harlaftis, Department of History, Ionian University, Corfu
